Survival for the Ingenious

Submitted by Village of Richfield Springs Historian Harriett Geywits

Prohibition - it was dreaded by many - praised by many. For a summer resort area, it presented added problems as indicated by an article that appeared in 1921 in the Little Falls Times entitled 'Richfield People Want Prohibition Law Enforced': "Those valley seekers after hooch who have been making weekend visits to Richfield Springs for their supply are likely to be disappointed when they go to the resort hereafter. The village, voted dry before the 18th Amendment went into effect, finds that there still are a large number of intoxicants to be found in the village and the increased volume of business resulting to the trolley as a result, has saved the railroad from impending bankruptcy. But now, a change has come over Richfield. The good people of that place have become disgusted at seeing the village made a dumping ground for the vicinity loafers and have taken steps to stop the illegal sale of inebriates. Chief of Police Dickinson has been served with a notice that unless he stops the bootlegging and influx of loafers, he will lose his position." The result of this was that several raids were made on various businesses such as the New Charles, the Genesee and the Garden Of The Mills, to name a few. In 1921, the Darrow House was forced to close its doors due to lack of business.

Prior to this, activities of the temperance (self-imposed abstinence) and anti-saloon leagues had been prominent in this area, so the passage of the 18th Amendment (the Volstead Act) was not a surprise. President Wilson's veto had been overridden and it became law on October 28, 1919. World War I was an important factor used to emphasize that in order to feed the troops, there was a greater need for the grains used in brewery products and that manufacturing and transportation of liquor took away from needed resources that were already scarce. This led to the War-Time Prohibition act of 1918 which in turn led to the 1919 law. Of course, interpretation of the law was varied as was its enforcement. Physicians, for example, were allowed to prescribe whiskey for their patients and home-made brews were prevalent.

But what were the many breweries to do when faced with closures and unemployment? Prohibition was meant to solve many of society's ills with well intentioned goals, but it also caused a serious problem for these major companies - problems unless they had the initiative to search out production of other things that would help keep their doors open. It was fine for customers in many parts of the country to purchase all the liquor they could stock up in their cellars for the duration, but the manufacturing and distribution is what had been outlawed. One thousand brewing companies across the country were on the brink of going out of business and were in a quandary as to what to do next.

One company that sold locally was the Pabst Brewing Company, founded originally in 1844 as The Empire Brewery. They had thought ahead even before the official start of Prohibition. As early as 1917, Pabst was producing an alcoholic alternative (near beer) called Pablo - advertised as 'The Happy Hoppy Drink That Makes You Feel Good'. This was basically water, malt syrup and malt extract made as a trial into temperance beverages. They also bottled artesian water, manufactured malt syrup (later an important ingredient for the home brewer) and malt extract. They needed more, however, to remain solvent.

Gustave and Fred Pabst got together to consider the situation. By 1923, they had begun the production of root beer, ginger ale, grape and cherry soda. They also had made use of the products from Fred's farm which had originally been purchased to raise French Percheron horses to pull their wagons. As the use of horses faded in favor of more modern transportation, he switched to a high-producing dairy. The brewery was equipped with cold storage and pasteurization areas which made the perfect place to try out the idea of making cheese and other milk products, turning this into a reality during a time of need. The brewing company then became the Pabst Company and they began with the production of Swiss cheese. They progressed to making processed cheese due to rationing during the war. They created a cheese product that contained more nutritional value than regular cheese. It had a long shelf-life and could be shipped overseas to the troops.

One of their products that was sold locally was Pabst-ett, sold by our local Victory Market and American Store for an average price of two packages for forty-five cents in 1930. It was a very popular product, marketed in clever packaging to make it look like a small wheel of cheese. It was so popular, in fact, that the Kraft Company sued for patent infringement. Kraft held broad patents on the making of processed cheese and if Pabst wanted to continue manufacturing Pabst-ett, they would have to pay a royalty on each pound sold. They did so as this was still a popular product when the line was sold to Kraft and the thoughts of the Pabst company were turning back to the production of beer.

Pabst was not the only brewery that had planned ahead. Nearly every beer company in the country created non-alcoholic beverages in front of the public. Schlitz made 'Famo'. Anheuser Bush produced more than twenty-five alternative products including everything from ice cream to refrigerated truck bodies, frozen egg products, infant formula, carbonated coffee and tea and Bud malt, which sold locally in 1933 for fifty-three cents for a three pound can. Coors produced domestic porcelain tableware. The D. G. Yuengling & Co brewery had a very successful production of ice cream which continued until 1985. Kate Yuengling and new husband Frederick J. Remer, stopped here at the Spring House in 1885 for a visit. Most breweries had their brands of barley malt syrup and brewer's yeast.

The election of Franklin D. Roosevelt as president in 1933, gave everyone hope that Prohibition would end as soon as he was in office. Two weeks after his inauguration, factory whistles across Milwaukee blew, rejoicing in his signing of the Cullen-Harrison Act, modifying the Volstead Act, allowing for the manufacture of 3.2% beer and light wines. The full repeal of Prohibition came later that year with the ratification of the twenty-first amendment to the Constitution.

American breweries, out of necessity and ingenuity, had proved that they could become adept at producing alternative products to meet the changing times. The breweries that had weathered the storm were now back in business.

Houseplant Tip

It's important to watch houseplants closely. According to gardenguides.com, an online gardening resource, you should inspect plants regularly for yellowing or discolored leaves. This condition is usually caused by overwatering, but can also be the result of insects. Deformed plants and sticky deposits on leaves and stems can be caused by insects as well.

THE FARMERS' MUSEUM

FENIMORE ART MUSEUM

YOUNG INTERPRETER PROGRAM

The Farmers' Museum has an exciting opportunity for hardworking, self motivated boys and girls between the ages of 13 and 14.

The Young Interpreter Program is a highly competitive apprenticeship program, in which young people work side by side with museum staff to learn about America's past, develop skills, and share newfound knowledge with museum visitors. Young interpreters will work one day a week for 8 consecutive weeks starting the last week in June and ending the last week in August.

For more information, please go to our website, farmersmuseum.org and type Young Interpreter under the search icon for details on how to apply or contact Patrick MacGregor at p.macgregor@farmersmuseum.org or call 607-547-1527.

THE FARMERS' MUSEUM

FENIMORE ART MUSEUM

INTERNSHIP

Historical Clothing and Alterations Internship • 10 week summer position (unpaid, for college credit)

The Farmers' Museum is seeking a summer intern interested in gaining direct hands-on experience in the creation, research, and maintenance of clothing for the museum's costumed interpreters. The intern will work closely with museum staff and interpreters on a variety of projects. Projects may include inventory management, cleaning, repairs and alterations of interpreter clothing, creation of new garments, and research of historical styles. The intern will also take part in implementation of a historic sewing interpretation program. The Internship is available during a 10-week summer session, with a minimum of two 7-hour days each week. The summer session for 2024 runs from May 30, 2024, to August 11, 2024. The internship is unpaid and may be used for college credit.

INTERNSHIP

Exhibition Experts Internship • Seasonal, Part-Time (unpaid, for college credit)

Fenimore Art Museum is offering a unique opportunity with an internship for a college student interested in art who enjoys interacting with the public. In this position, the intern will conduct hands-on activities with visitors related to artwork in our exhibitions with a special focus on Banksy's "Haight Street Rat." Interns will be stationed at our Art Cart within the gallery, greeting visitors and discussing Banksy and subversiveness in art. Exhibition Experts will also provide scheduled mini guided tours. Shifts are four to five hours per day during the peak hours of operation at Fenimore Art Museum. Availability between Wednesdays and Sundays required. Candidates should have an interest in the arts and should be comfortable talking and interacting with others.

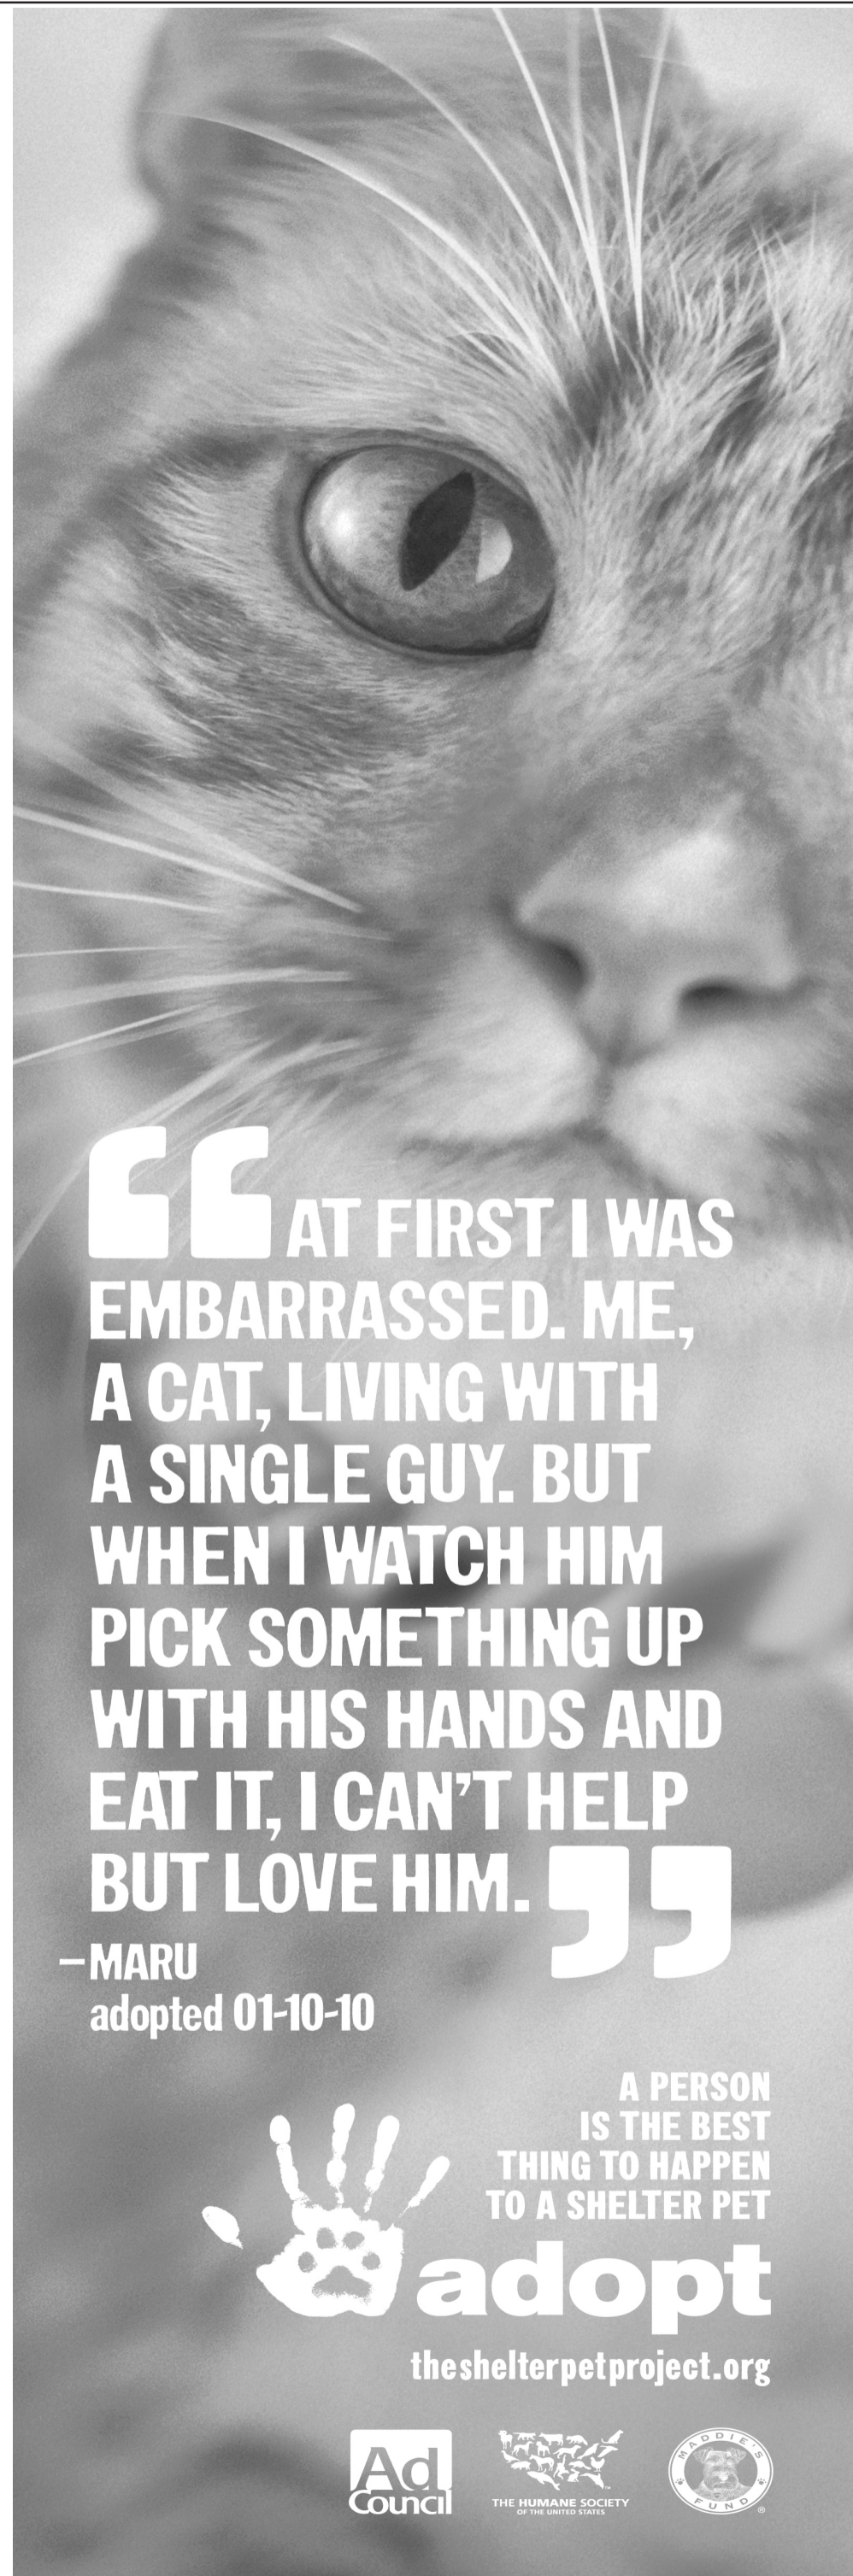

Otsego: A Meeting Place (FAM) Interpretation Internship

Up to 30 Hours/Week (unpaid, for credit)

Fenimore Art Museum seeks an intern to support interpretation of our outdoor Native American cultural exhibition, Otsego: A Meeting Place, for the 2024 season. The ideal candidate will enjoy speaking with a diverse array of museum visitors and display energy, enthusiasm, and a willingness to learn. This position entails staffing a recreated Mohawk Bark House and an original Seneca Log House and cultivating a small garden. A keen interest in Haudenosaunee culture and history required. Knowledge of local history, anthropology, and ecology will support superior performance in this role. This is an excellent opportunity for a student looking for a fun, rewarding internship at Fenimore Art Museum.

Applications may be mailed to PO Box 800, Cooperstown, New York 13326.

You may also contact Human Resources at 607-547-1462 or e-mail hr@fenimoreart.org. EOE

LOOKING FOR AN AFFORDABLE USED CAR?
SICK OF BUYING rusty junk off of Craigslist and then spending more than you paid for it trying to get it functional or to pass inspection? At Central Auto Sales I take pride in buying quality cars that are still in excellent condition that can supply you with many miles of service in the future. I typically buy my cars from states south of NY to avoid the rust associated with local cars. I have a nice selection of cars in the affordable $4-6K range, most are low miles or low miles for the age. I'm a lifetime resident of Norwich. Buy from someone local. No pressure, no fancy hype, just quality cars at fair prices! Central Auto Sales LLC, 429 Manley Road, Norwich. www.centralautosalesllc.com 607-336-6371.
